VINCENT COLLEGE
LATROBE, PENNA.

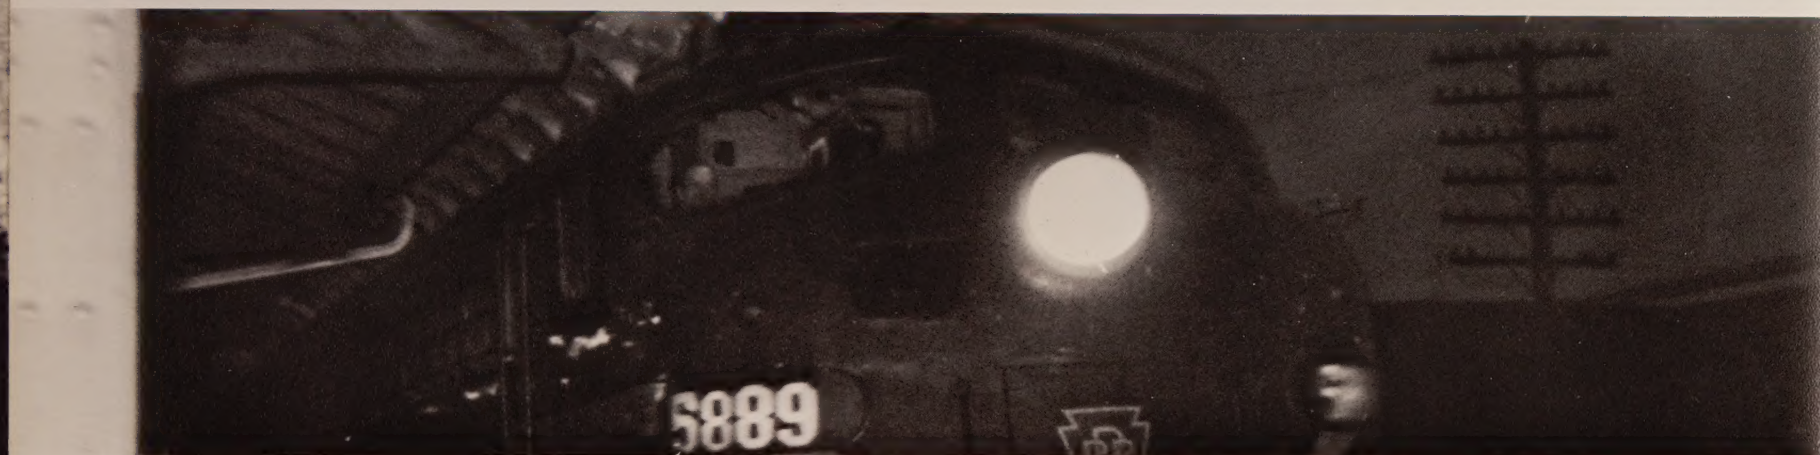

Then I saw a new heaven, and a new earth. The old heaven, the old earth had vanished, and there was no more sea. And I, John, saw in my vision that holy city which is the new Jerusalem, being sent down by God from heaven, all clothed in readiness, like a bride who has adorned herself to meet her husband. I heard, too, a voice which cried aloud from the throne, Here is God's tabernacle pitched among men; he will dwell with them, and they will be his own people, and he will be among them, their own God. He will wipe away every tear from their eyes, and there will be no more death, or mourning, or cries of distress, no more sorrow; those old things have passed away. And he who sat on the throne said, Behold, I make all things new. (These words I was bidden write down, words most sure and true.)

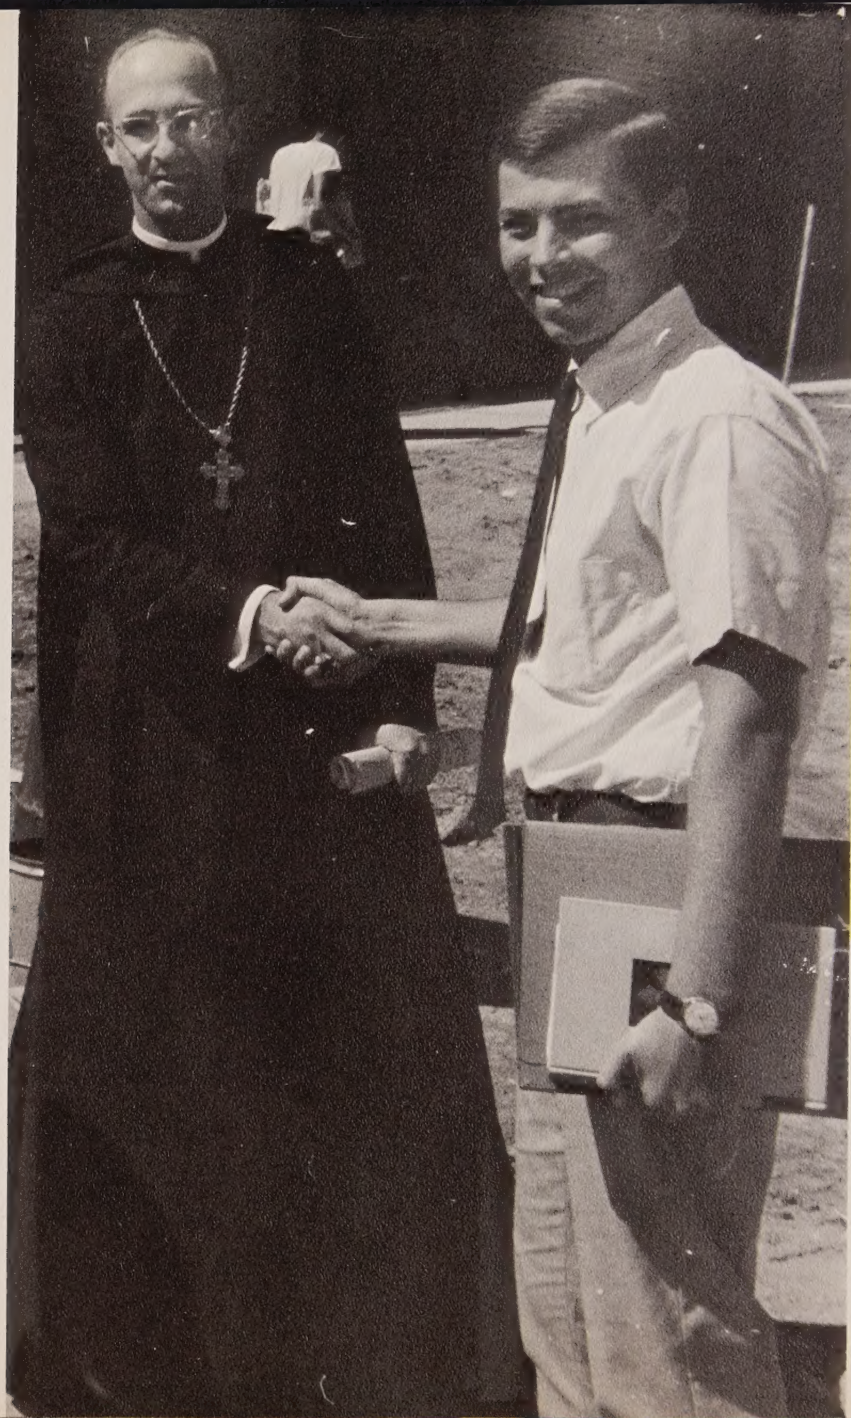

Apocalypse 21: 1-5

We came to college by

Truck

We wondered if all of this was real.

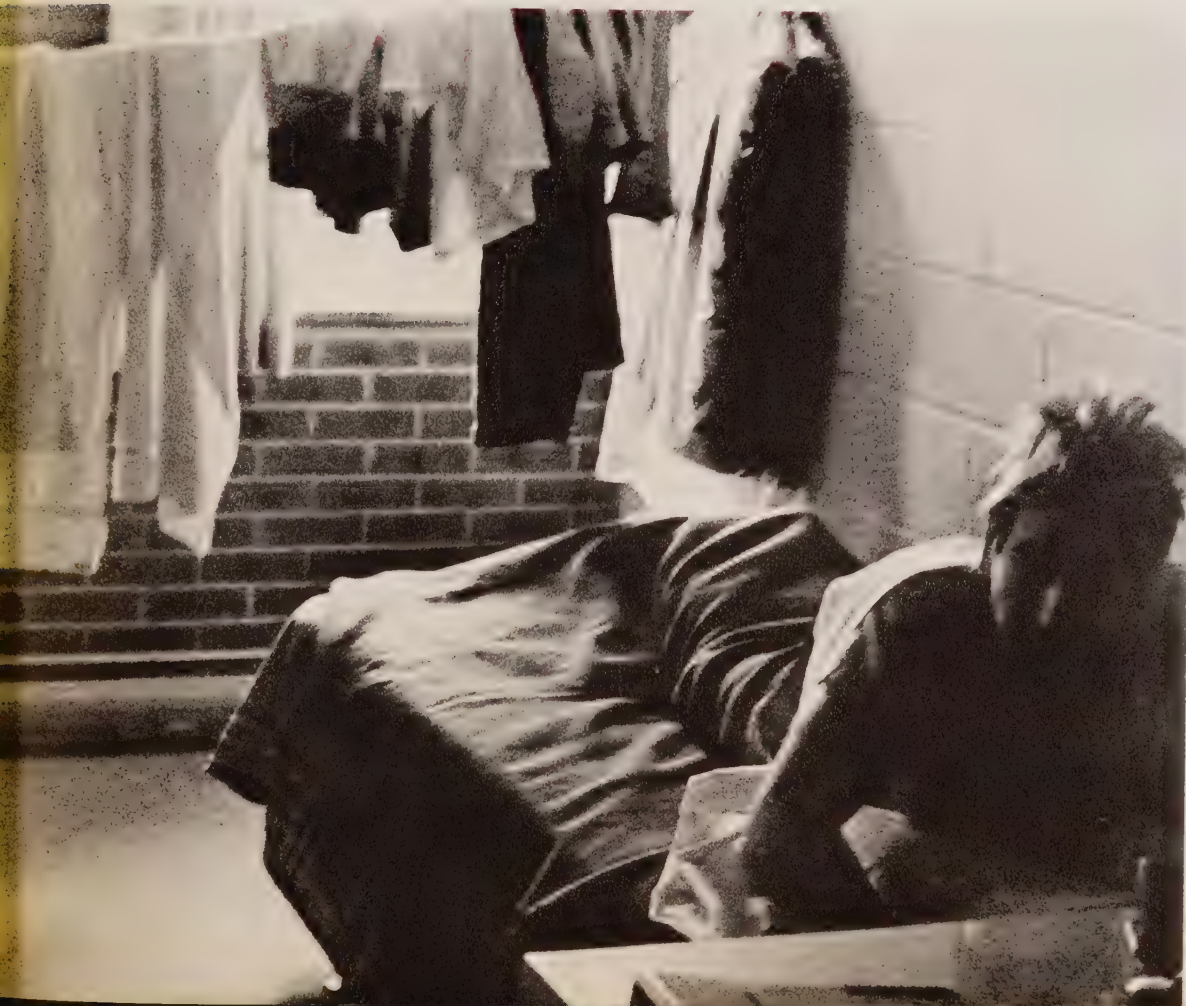

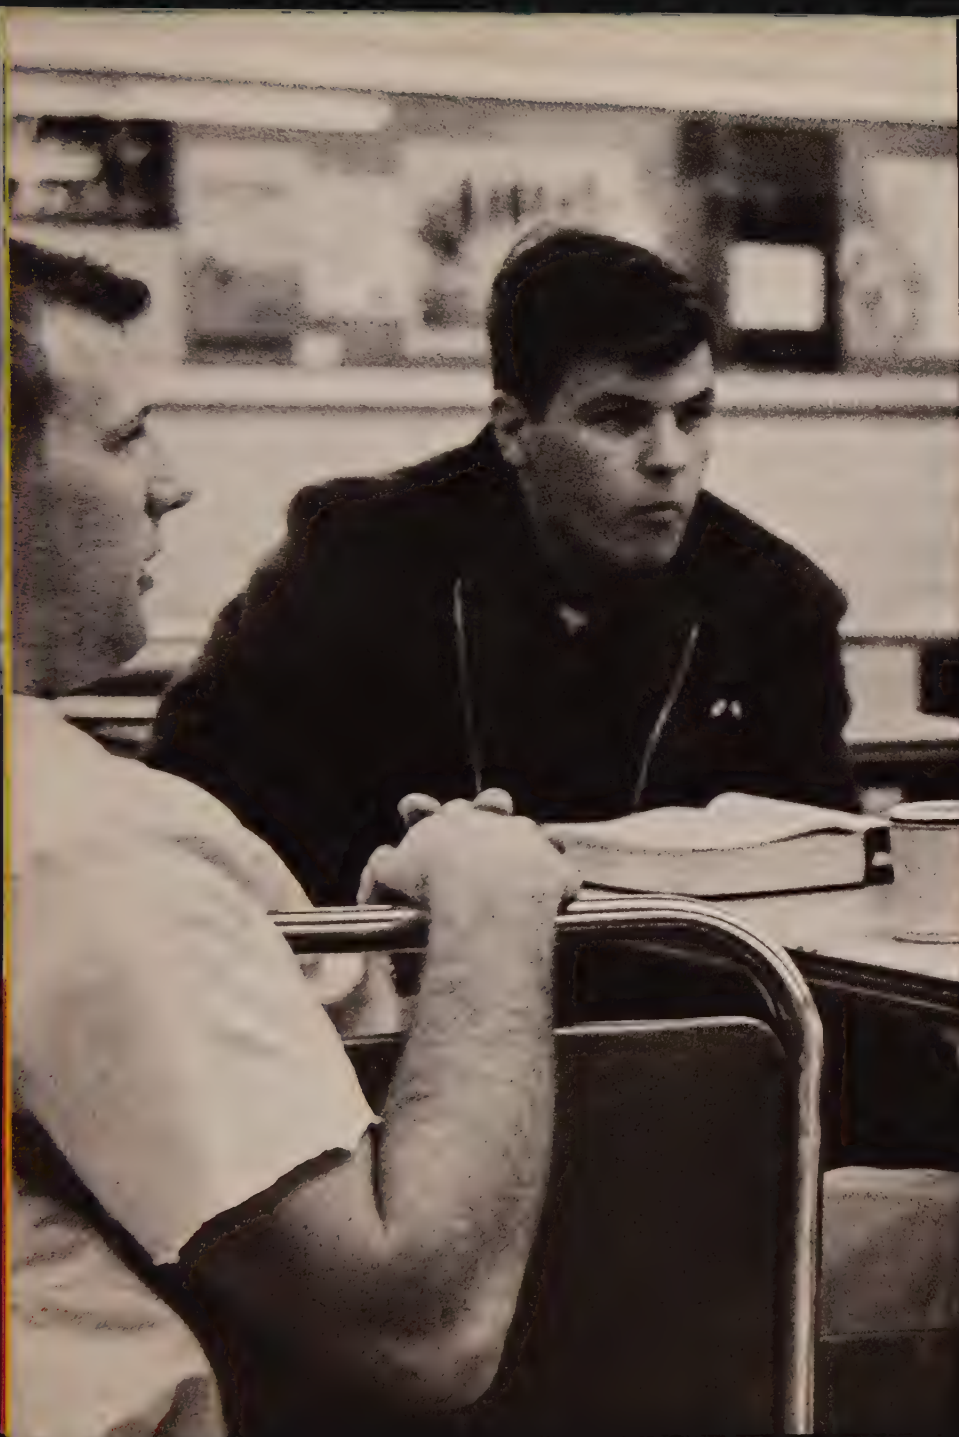

The name was the same but somehow we couldn't help but notice the subtle change that had taken place during our absence. We moved in without ceremony or pomp, ignoring the inconveniences of long walks to class and the strange men who wandered about the dorms putting fixtures in our rooms . . .

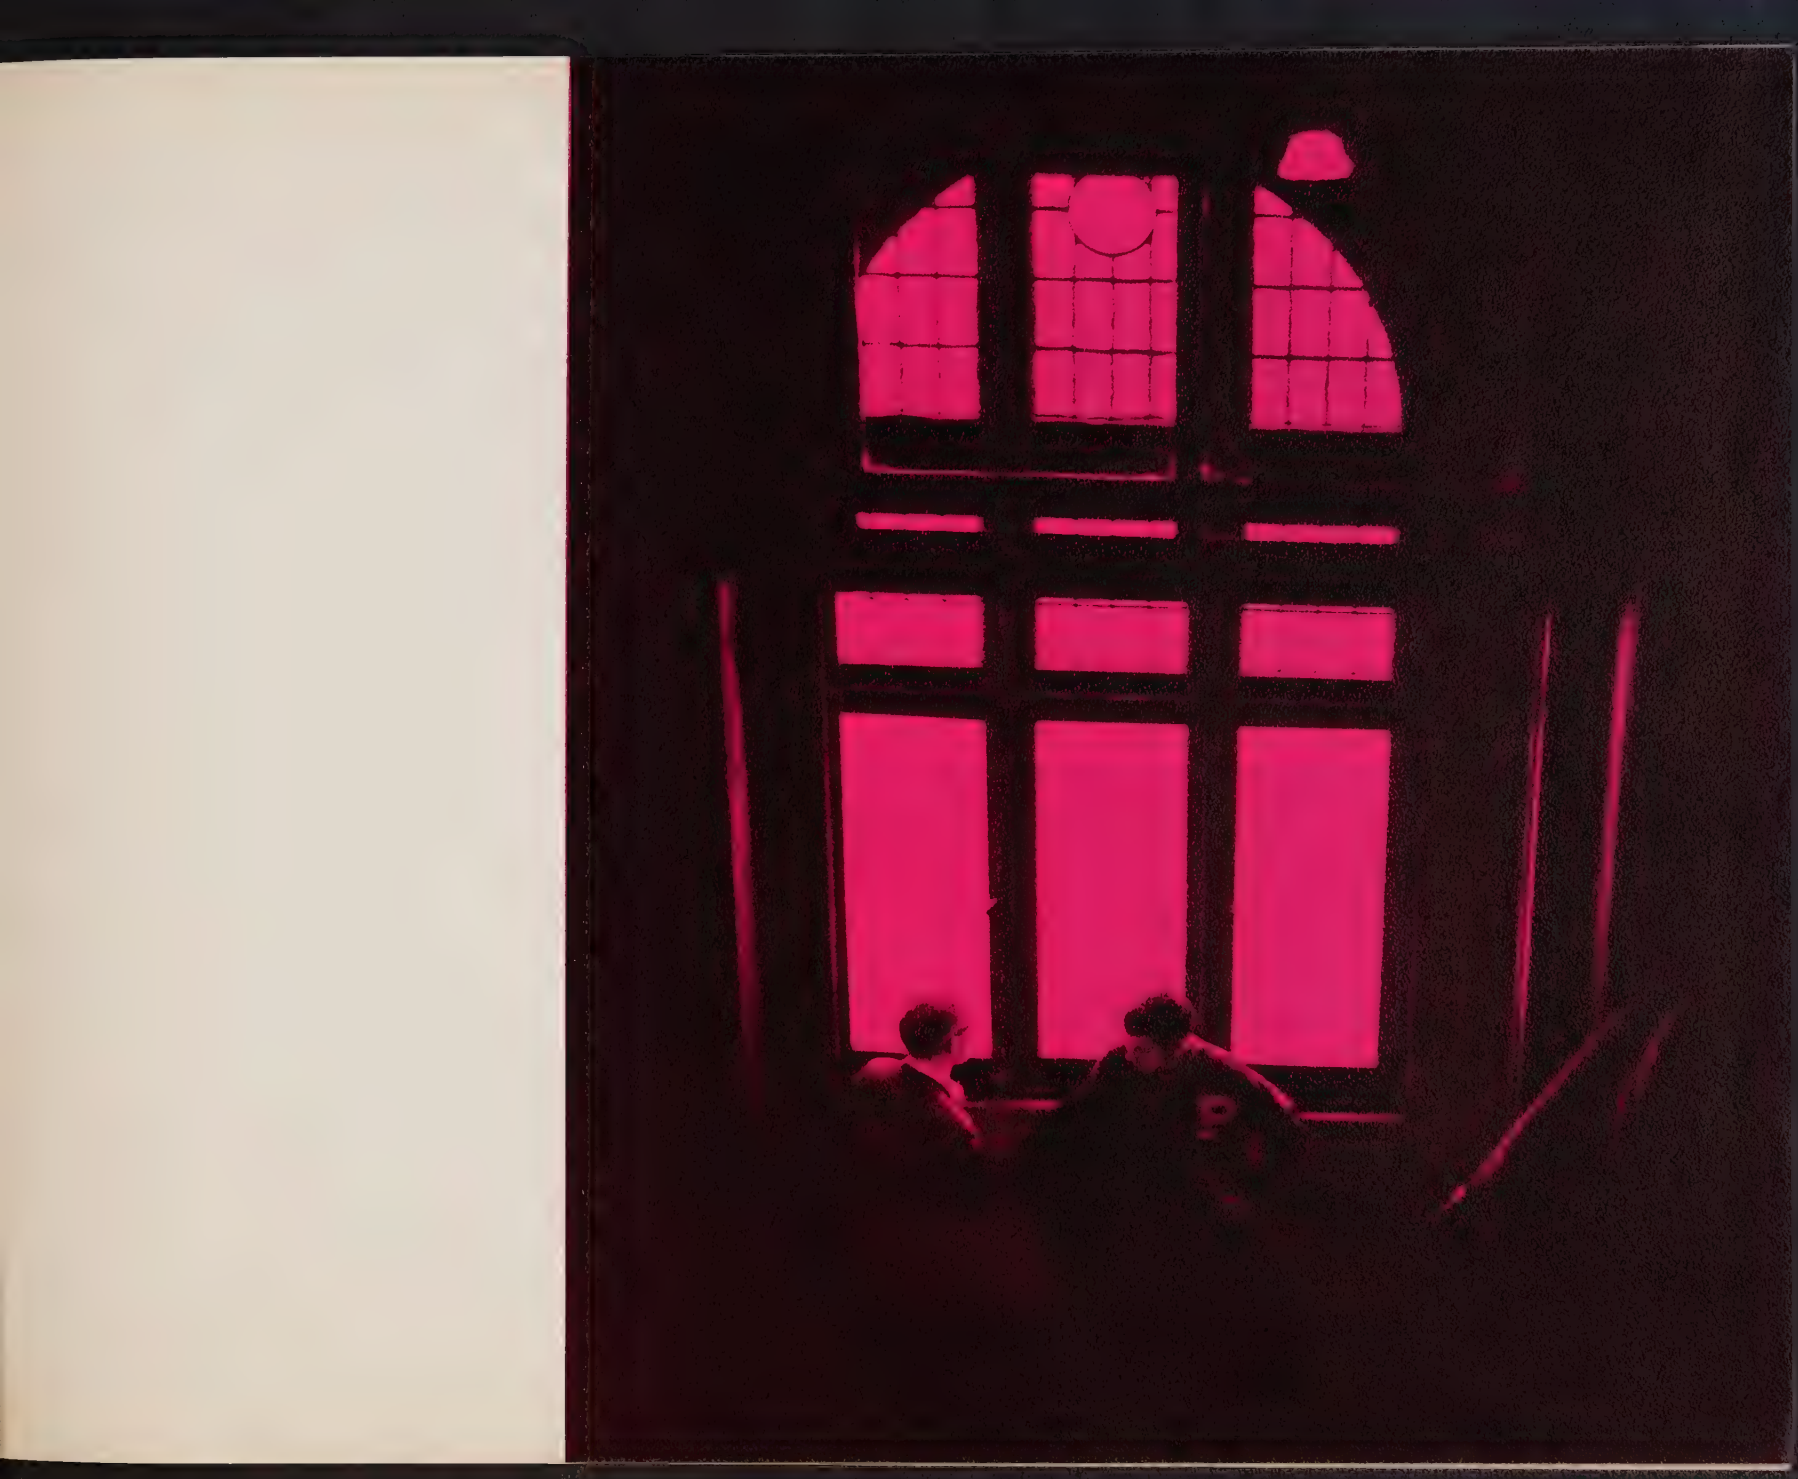

stirring us from our SUBLIMITY—

This is Vincent as we saw it, through minds sometimes dulled with sleeplessness, sometimes alive with our creativity.

When we were early we stopped to talk with friends in the "Shack." When we were late we dropped in anyway to see who else was late, and to sample the morning coffee—reluctantly.

We found out that the essence of a work is always something other than what the artist intended. Besides this we learned new names and concepts:

Gross National Product

Desoxyribose Nucleic Acid

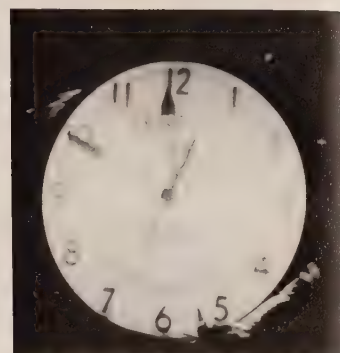

Chaucer

Deficit Spending

Oedipus Complex

Keynes

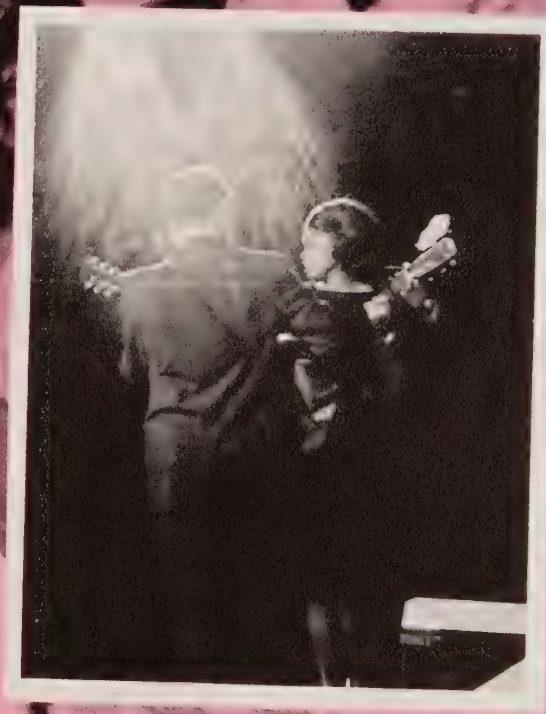

the "I"

In bull sessions down at the Tea Room we discussed philosophical profundities, synthesized new ideas with old one, and in general, waited with renewed anticipation for her to come.

We weren't sure how much we should give of ourselves. Sometimes we wondered if it was all worth it. Ours were doubts and apprehensions about the future, however we pushed these aside in lieu of the present—but the future was always present. We were cognizant of the change around us, the new ideas, new faces, new self . . . At times we were happy, laughing, musing, frustrated, depressed—we were maturing.

Coadjutor Archabbot
Rembert Weakland, O.S.B.
to whom this book is dedicated:

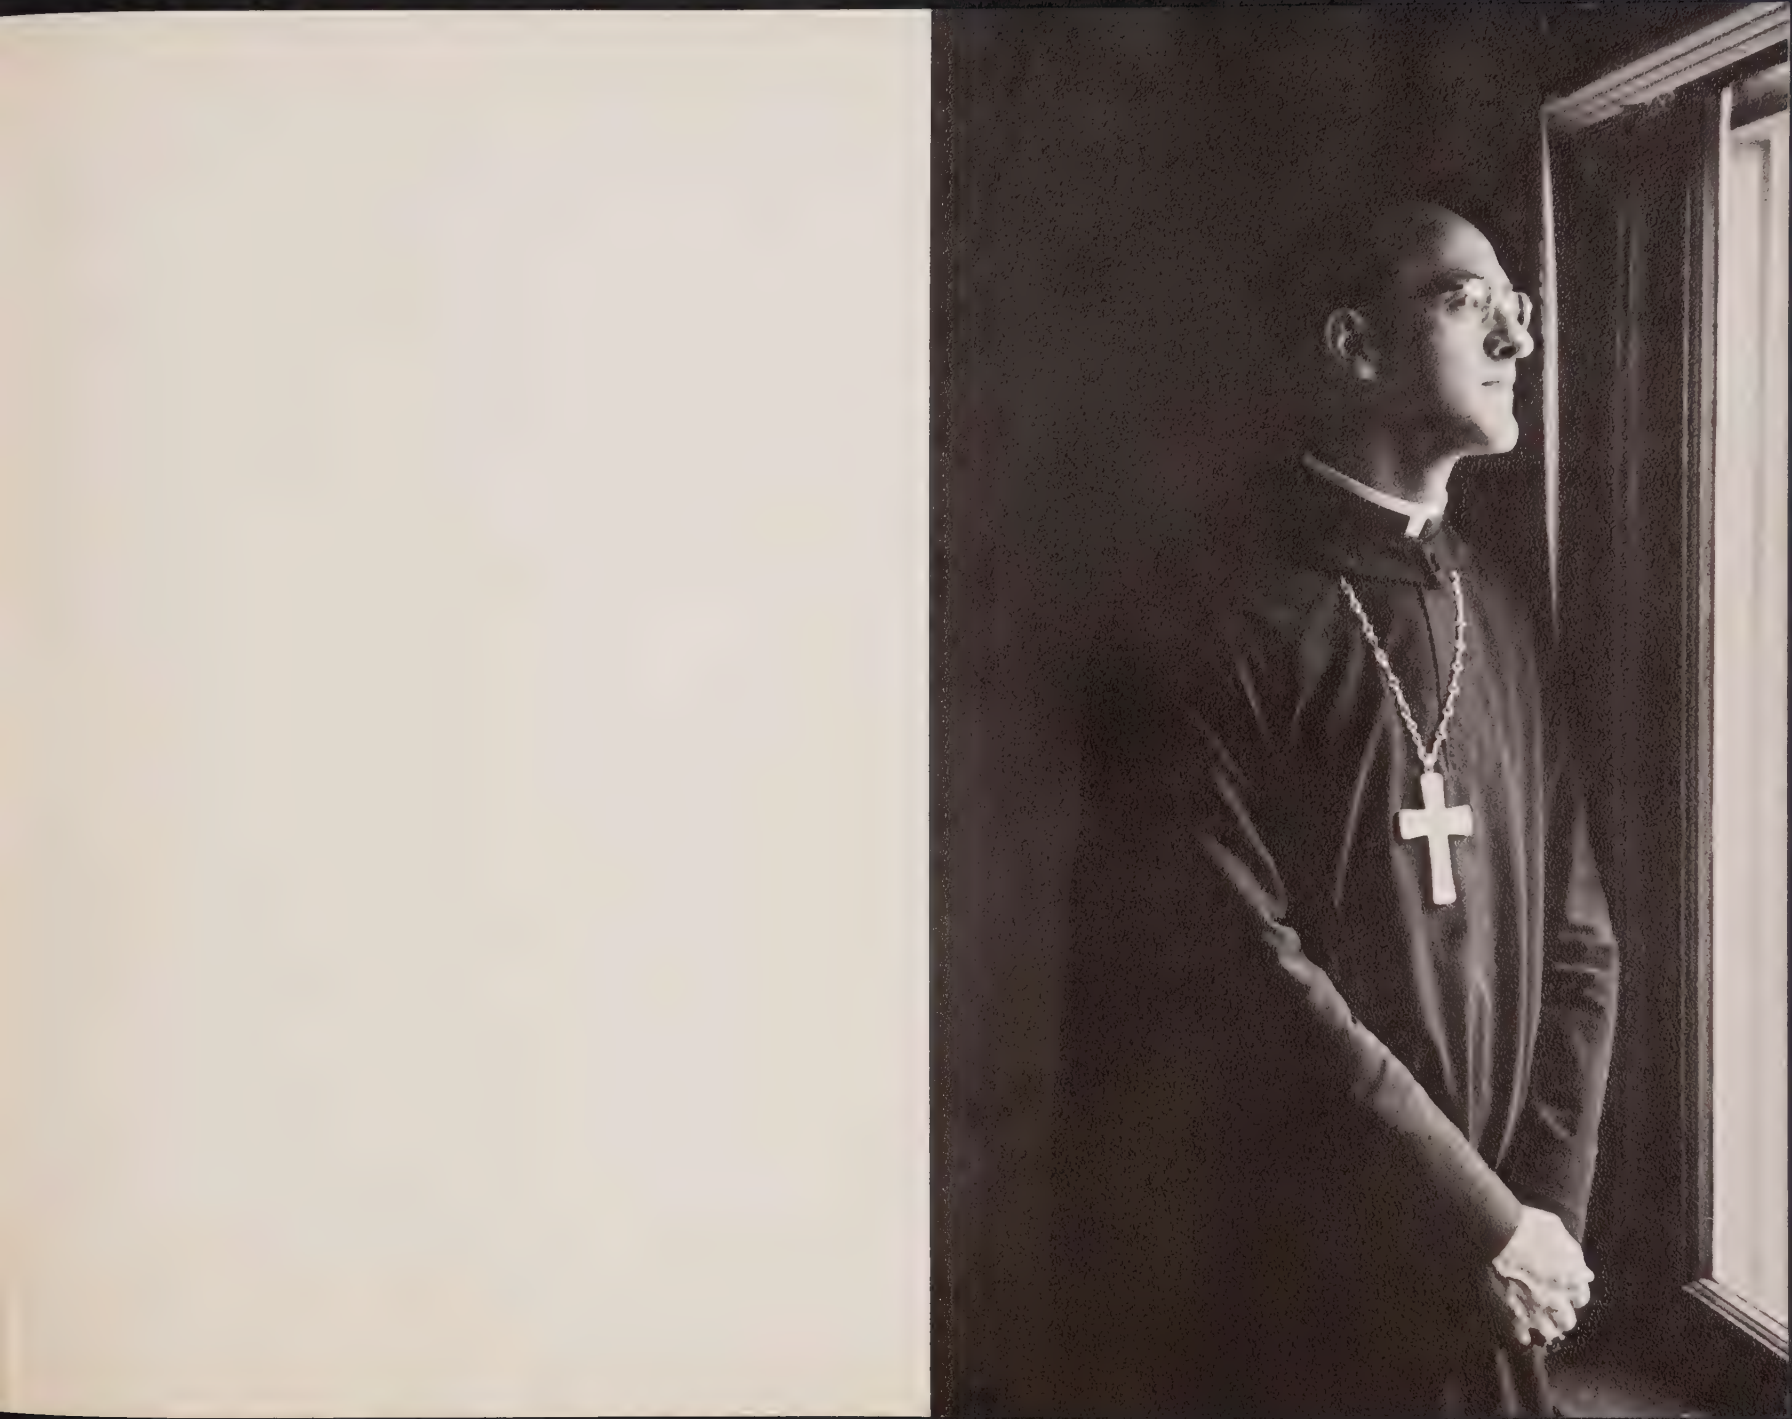

"You have received the spirit of the adoption of sons, whereby we cry Abba, Father." Romans 8:15

There can be no question of real progress in humanization unless we have failed to realize the extent to which our highest authority here, Father Archabbot, is committed to a genuine concern for the individual. This concern, manifest in general attitude and personal interest and awareness, stems from an authentic love which involves not only his ready accessibility to all of us, but also his personal sense of dedication to each of us. His love, like that of a father for his sons, is one of intersubjectivity, and his encounter with us reveals his belief in his own destiny, that of destiny-for-us. It is his sympathetic understanding, his active leaning toward the individual, that is the basis of all his relationships, that permeates his entire life, that involves his ultimate duty to God. In such a man, chosen for the merit of his life and the quality of his wisdom, is constantly revealed the creativity of genuine love. We do not remain unaffected by his sincere commitment, and through his example we are constantly invited to see what he sees, the real essence of human existence, the sympathetic involvement demanded of an unselfish Christian life. And his love is fulfilled only when we choose to favor his guidance and his example. Love does not compel; it cannot ever compel without ceasing to be love. It directs, influences, and participates in the formation of each one of us, enabling realization of self and of personal destiny. We no longer plan our manhood alone, but together with him.

ADMINISTRATION

Reverend Maynard J. Brennan, O.S.B.,
President of our college

The harmonious union of the students, faculty and administration is the intent of our President, Fr. Maynard. He is accomplishing this goal through a mutual program of understanding and communication. This plan is in essence a New Jerusalem.

Father Maynard possesses two qualities which will bring us to the New Jerusalem. These are youth and maturity. Youth and maturity are not merely measured chronologically; they have their basis in the psyche, they are psychological. And possessing a youth which matches our youth and commanding a maturity which satisfies our very need for maturity, he will make the New Jerusalem a concrete reality built from the clay of desire and bound together with understanding, communication, and Christian love.

FALL WEEKEND
The LETTERMEN in Concert

HOMEcoming

In between shining up the spirit bell and working late hours on our exhibits we found time for coffee breaks and occasionally for study.

"We shall rise from the ashes . . ." was the theme of one display, which ironically burned down.

PARENTS' W E E K E N D

Our parents arrived to appraise for themselves the austerity of college living. We showed them our meager existence—our humble dwellings, the wall to wall carpeting . . . We got only a snore of sympathy as they settled themselves down in the living room in our austere lounge chairs before going on to spend a few relaxing moments with Charley's Aunt.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Question: When is the Student Government not the Student Government?

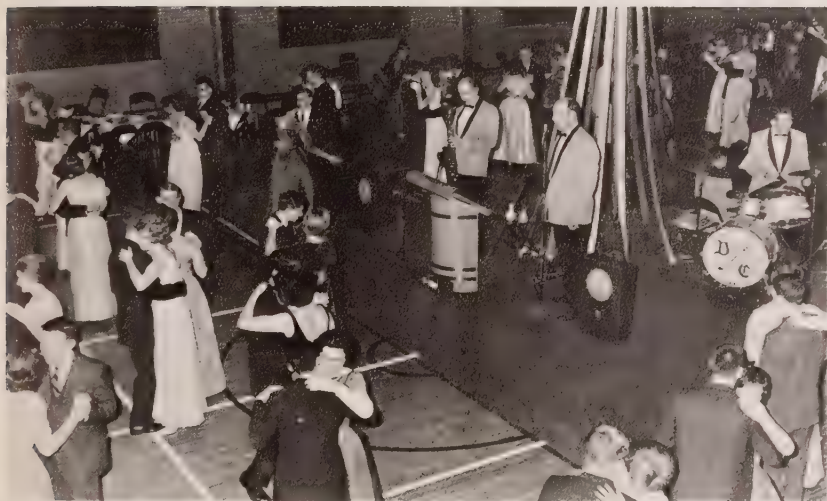

Answer: When they are allocating money.

EPIPHANY

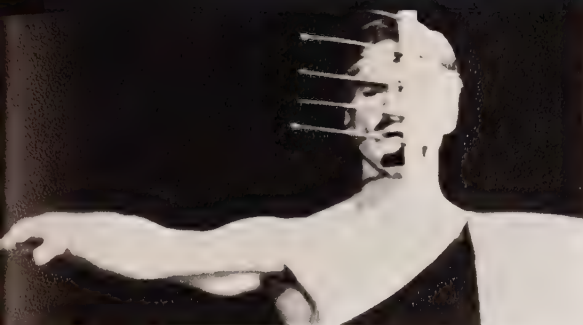

BALL

RING DANCE

Erick Hawkins moves in space. A liturgy of human motion gathers force and form. His troupe begins to move in clear vivid motion. The body speaks of man Here and Now with Watchers. Clear Places emerge. We are led to a celebration of life through the poetry of dance.

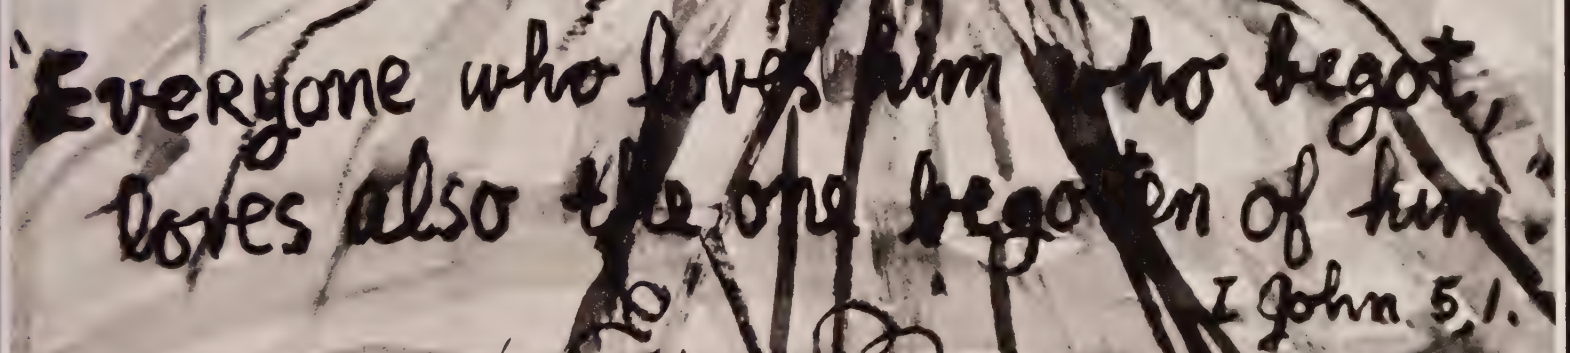

Lucia Dlugoszewski strikes wood, metal; she tears paper; creates rhythm, a sequence of sound; we are awakened to a new world of music. Her sensitivity insists about the loveliness of this world—perhaps the inward looking, knowing and loving of man.

Religion is being aware of a new dimension in reality. — Aware of meaning as a result of God's word.

I experience myself standing out from nothingness. I experience myself as a restless desire to be filled, to be completed. By something? By someone? One day I hear God's word. I am the restless desire who is being called by God. He calls me and enables me to say yes to him as the fulfillment of my desire. He says Hello to me and enables me to say Hello.

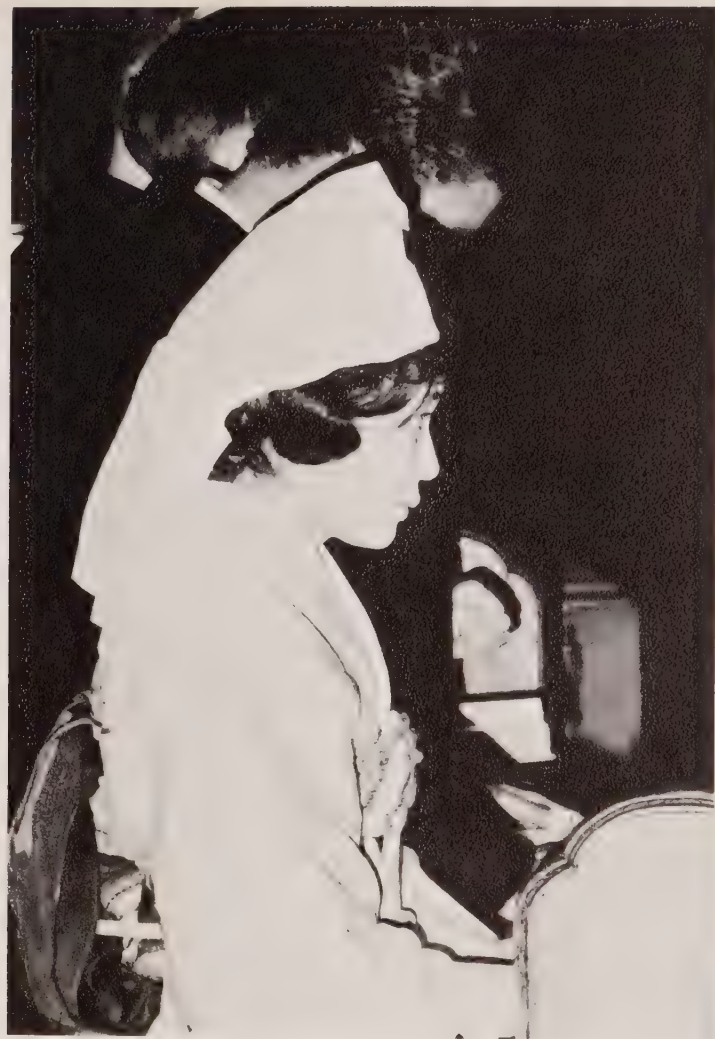

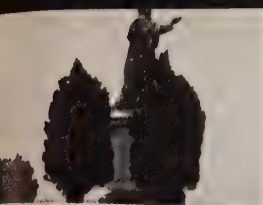

Everyone who loves him who begot,
loves also the one begotten of him.
I John 5, 1.

11/1/77 K & M W P 11/1/77

A colloquy of foreign students hosted by our college discussed "Contemporary Tendencies Towards International Styles in the Arts." The colloquy served primarily as a cultural experience by which they were able to participate and examine new dimensions in the arts.

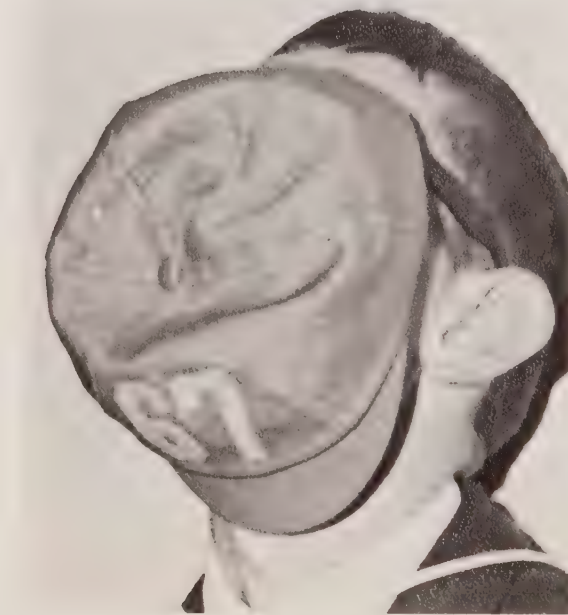

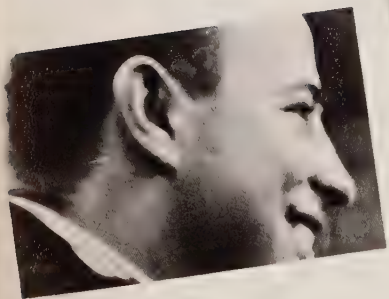

Sometimes we were happy . . .

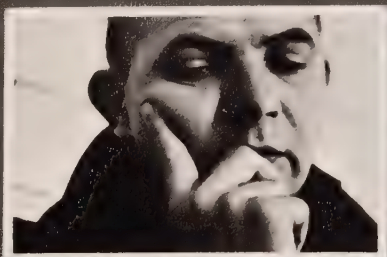

while other times our ideals just didn't seem to be commensurate with reality. Our feelings gave way to expression.

VARIETY SHOW

BASKETBALL

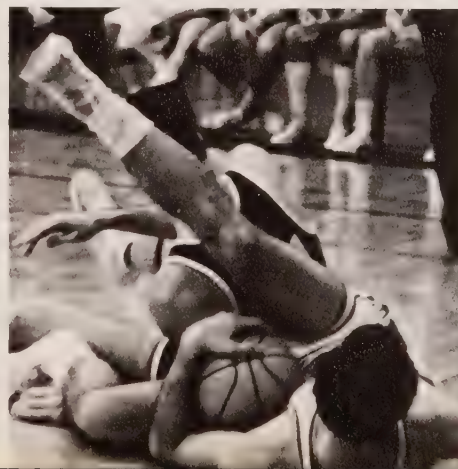

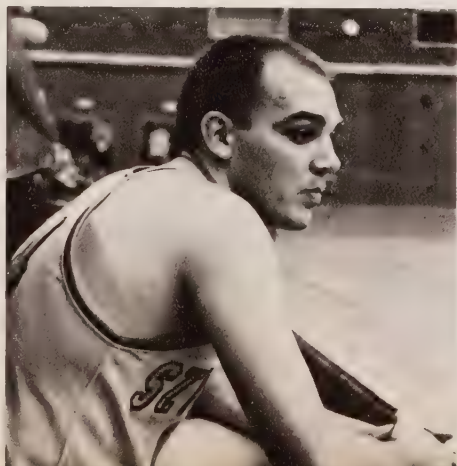

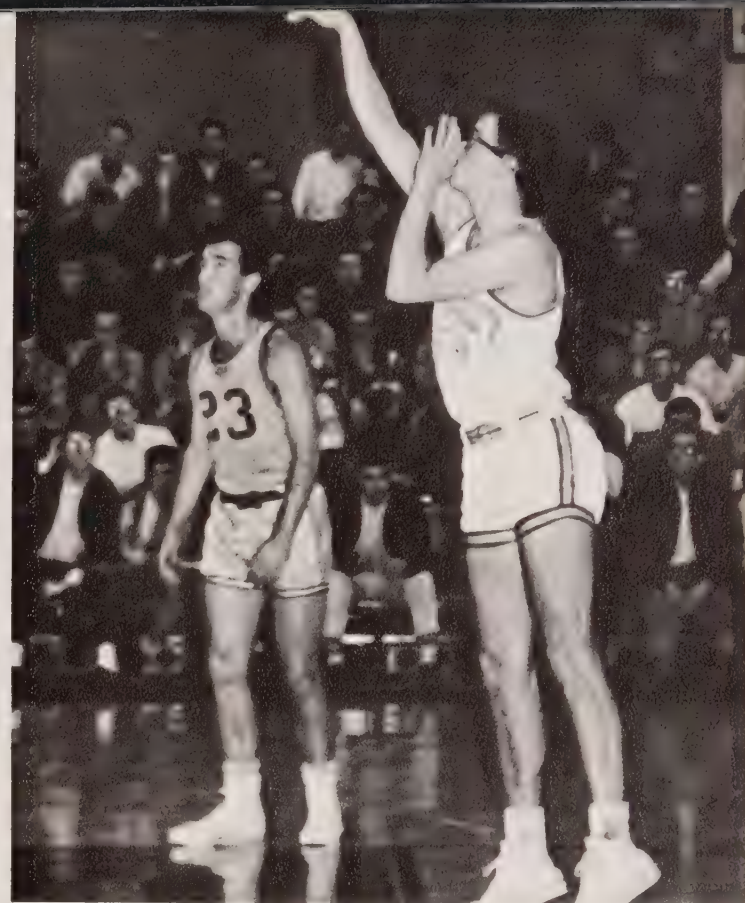

The 1963-1964 basketball team acquired a season record of 6-14 with five of the six victories occurring in the last ten games; and finished the season 4th in the WPC.

Coach "Dodo" Canterna, assisted by Harry Miller, produced a well-trained team led by Captain Ken Sweder, who compiled an average of 20.8 points and 10.5 rebounds per game. It showed a well-balanced attack vacillating around play-makers Barry Gardner, Tonly Gentile, Frank Dattilo, and Paul Benko; and board-men Bernie Tomasic, Wally Hobart, Tom Ankowiak, and Vic Hart.

The cheerleaders from Seton Hill along with the new WSVC broadcasting program enhanced the interest in the team's home and away activities; and has provided the well-needed pride in the team's performance. These factors were clearly manifested in the team's improved play.

WRESTLING

This year's Bearcat Wrestling team coached by Tom Harbert out of Shippensburg College compiled only one victory during the season; however, fine individual records were attained by co-captains Tom Skoloda (5-8) and Andy Anderson (6-7), and much school interest was stimulated by the influence of heavyweight Bob Busch's buoyant enthusiasm. Finding initiative and stability in such members, the team's honest competitive desire was furthered by other lettermen Chuck Yaskovich, Marty Chin, Bob Stoveken, Duff Regan, Tom Groy and George Jennings.

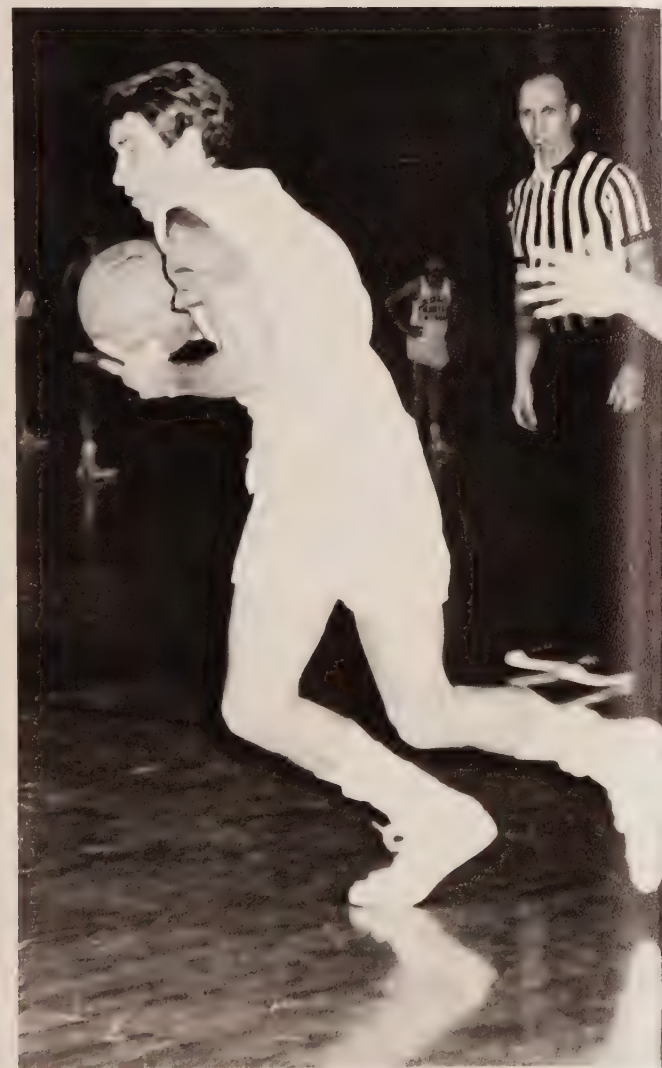

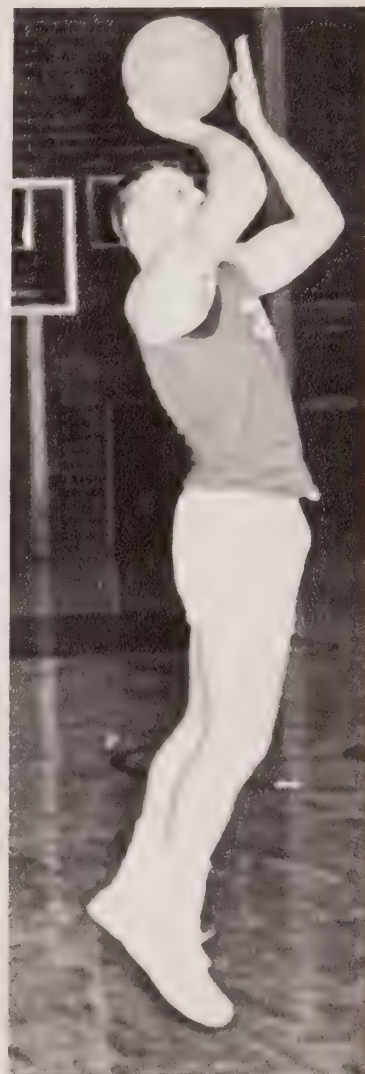

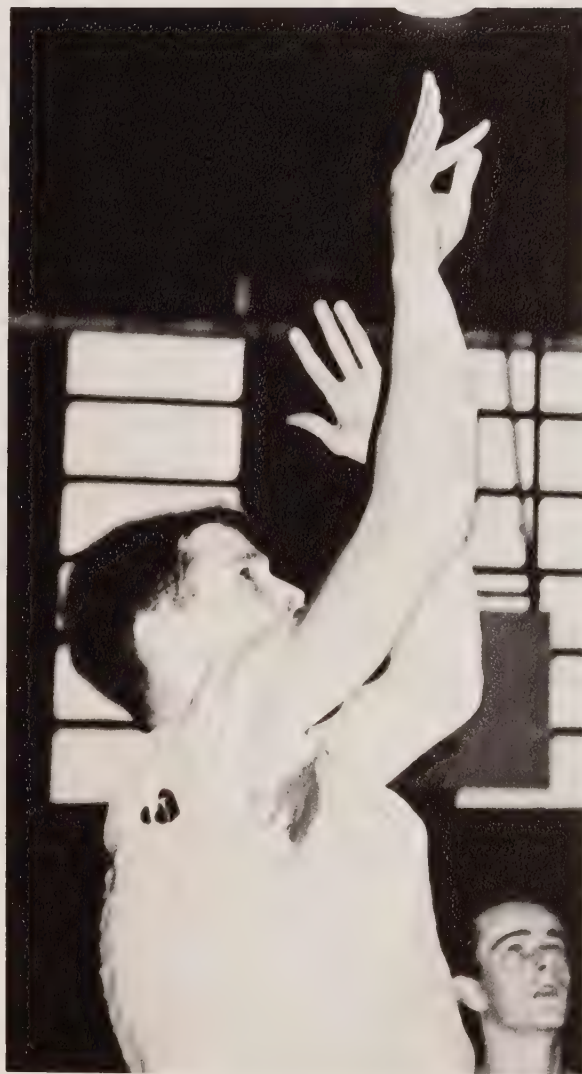

INTRAMURALS

Knute Rockne, famed Notre Dame football coach, was once faced with the problem of the advantages of "knocking one's brains out" in the game of football and thence athletics in general. His philosophy on the matter tended toward a psychological point of view: namely, the satisfaction of a natural combative or competitive instincts in man, and especially the frustrated collegian.

Here at St. Vincent, intramural athletics are well-developed according to the Rockne philosophy; the range of participation is wide, the facilities are abundant, and each student can choose his sport which will satisfy his particular competitive desire and relieve the frustrations of a purely academic existence. The sports need only be named: football, basketball, volleyball, bowling, wrestling, softball, ping pong, tennis, and pool.

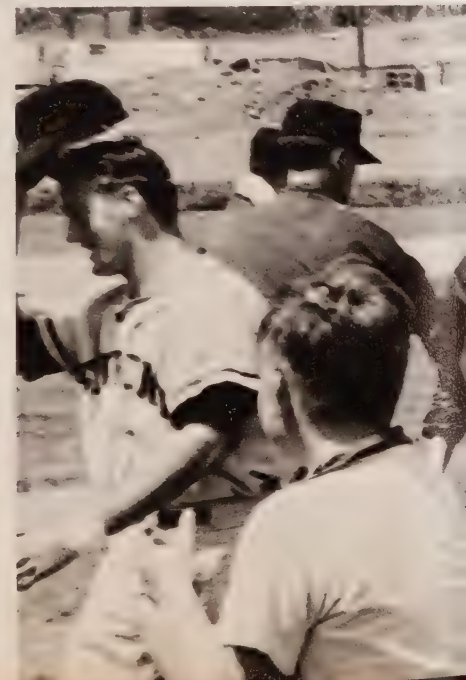

BASEBALL

In class

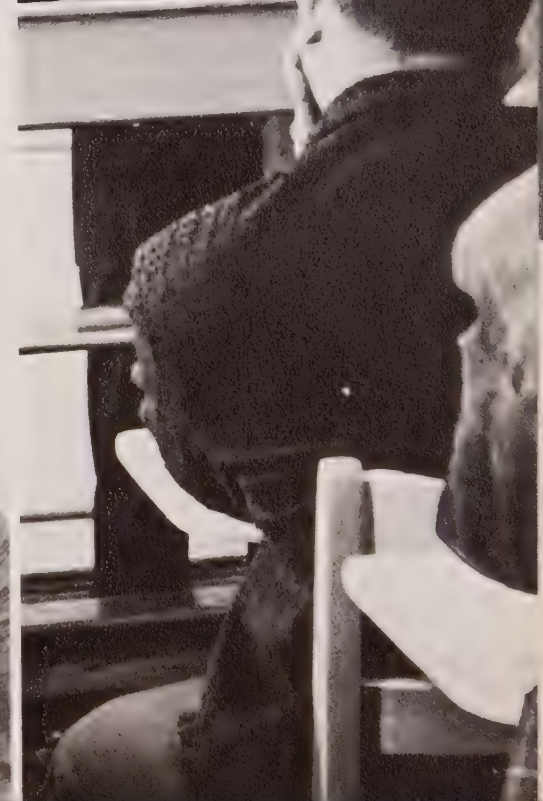

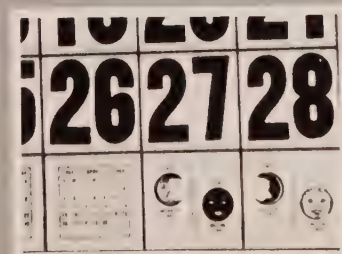

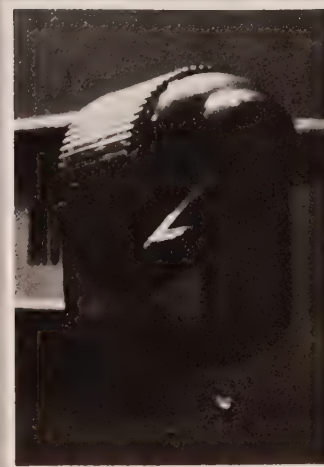

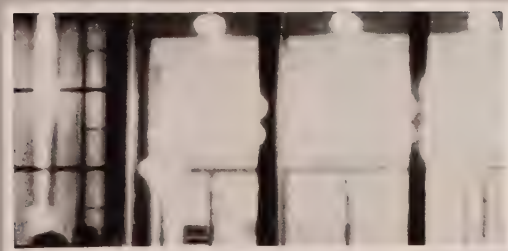

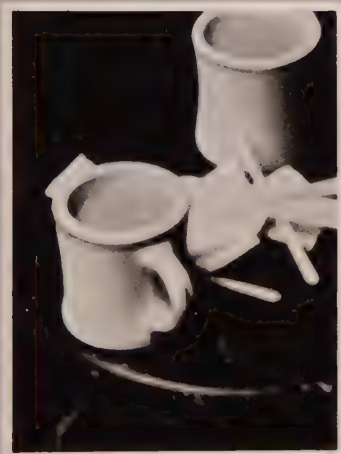

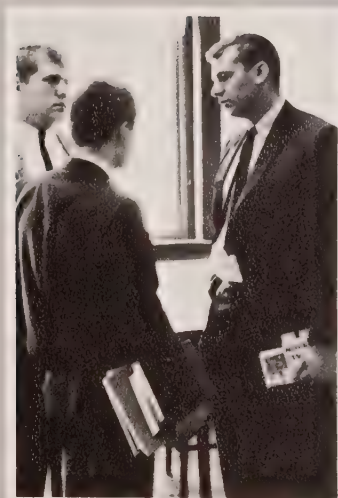

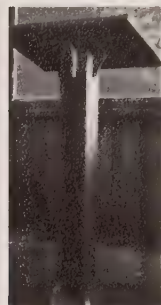

we discussed and evaluated sources of inspiration, imagination, and the recognition of ideas within a framework. Sometimes a class would provide us with a conducive atmosphere to exercise our "death wish." Other times it would be our source of stimulation and ideas.

We won't forget the long hours we spent in the lab
nor the lectures in Public Administration or Economics.
What we try to forget are the long walks to class
and the low grades.

Fortified with NoDoz and large quantities of coffee, complemented by sleepless nights, we sauntered into our exams looking as if we had grappled with Grendel's mother the night before. Afterwards the fatigue, the test questions, and the execrations hurled at the prof were forgotten, but not the ideas. The ideas remained with us, to be quoted and talked about in our bull sessions.

A large, stylized black Union Jack is positioned on the left side of the page, with its vertical and horizontal bars extending towards the center. The background is a light cream color, and a dark grey horizontal band runs across the middle of the page.

SENIORS

— Office of the President —

Graduates of 1964,

The most important advice I can give you as you depart is this: Be Central. That is, do not be eccentric, which, as you know, means to be off center or out of the circle of things. You, on the other hand, must be very much "in," in the midst of activities - national, international, and, above all, moral.

The central Christian sees not only the defects of his fellow human beings but their virtues as well. He considers the nobility of institutions and not just occasional corruptions. He perceives the correctness of religion and not simply man's distortion of it. He stands for many things but, to be in the absolute center, for charity above all. He must see all men as equi-distant and equi-close to him, with no prejudice and all due consideration.

He must have integrity in his personal as well as his public life, for integrity and centrality are, in this context, almost synonymous. The integrated man is not a deceiver. He faces facts squarely; he does not distort or cheat or misalign.

Also, if he is central, he is cultural. In this respect centrality presumes addition rather than subtraction; that is, it includes rather than excludes. So the man who likes symphonic music does not arbitrarily rule out opera, and he who likes classical music does not summarily dismiss jazz. He who prefers representational painting does not gratuitously condemn the abstractionist. And similarly through all the arts, through those activities that direct the interested man to truth and beauty.

By this time I hope I have spelled out what I mean by this key word, central. May I, in conclusion, add this: If ten years from now you return to Alma Mater - I hope you will - if in the meanwhile I have discovered what you have done, what you have fought for since your graduation, and if I can say to you, "Joe, or Mike, or Pete, or Jim: you're central" - then I shall have paid you the highest compliment I know.

Maynard J. Brennan, C.S.B.

We sought culture wherever it could be found.

We are each concerned with our own particular life, its present, its future. We have experienced a change. We are aware of individuals whom we never really knew until now, and we have grown tolerant. Perhaps it is this which remains the most important aspect of what we have learned. Something of all of us will remain behind, not concrete or formal, but a certain look, word, or gesture. When we leave there will be complete and absolute silence!

Sometimes we search not knowing what
we are looking for . . .
until we come again
to our beginning—
